

Justin Langseth

President, CTO, and Co-Founder

Justin is the co-founder of Clarabridge and the inventor of Clarabridge™'s award-winning software. As President and CTO, he is responsible for the direction and day-to-day leadership of the organization.

Prior to Clarabridge, Justin co-founded Claraview, a BI strategy and technology consultancy, which was sold to Teradata in 2008. Before founding Claraview, Justin served as founder and CTO of Strategy.com, a real-time data analysis and alerting subsidiary of MicroStrategy. At Strategy.com, he designed and implemented systems that provided near real-time and real-time reports and alerts to over 350,000 users, via web, email, wireless, and voice technologies. Prior to launching Strategy.com, he was a technology program manager and consultant at MicroStrategy. In the early 1990's Justin was active in the BBS community, and he authored and marketed the EIS-PC BBS system. Justin is an expert in text mining, specifically related to integration of unstructured content. He currently holds four technology patents and has several more pending. Additionally, he is an instructor at the Data Warehouse Institute.

He graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he received an SB in Management of Information Technology from the MIT Sloan School of Management.
